

Xtool Campaign – Terms and Conditions

To qualify for this promotion, participants must be active Xtool customers in good standing as of the promotion start date, meaning they have no outstanding, disputed, or overdue payments. Participants must also be new to Autodata, having never previously registered for, accessed, or subscribed to any Autodata product or service, including free trials.

This promotion is non-transferable, may not be resold, and is not redeemable for cash. It cannot be used in conjunction with any other Autodata promotion, whether current, past, or future.

Participation requires agreement to Autodata’s standard e-commerce Terms and Conditions. Payment by credit or debit card may be required only upon conversion from trial to paid subscription. No charges will be made during the 28-day trial period unless the participant elects to subscribe before the trial ends.

Offer Details:

Eligible Xtool customers may receive a 20% discount on the annual Autodata subscription fee if they complete the subscription process within the 28-day trial period. A promotional code is required to access the trial and discount and must be applied at registration on the Autodata “Buy” page.

During the trial, Autodata will send promotional communications with redemption instructions. To receive the discount, participants must follow these instructions and complete payment before the trial ends. If the code is not used, the subscription will auto-renew at the standard rate, unless cancelled before the end of the trial period. Applicable taxes may apply.

Autodata reserves the right to modify or terminate this promotion at its discretion, provided that any such change will not affect participants who have already commenced the trial period under the terms then in effect. The promotion is void where prohibited or restricted by law. Additional terms may apply—refer to the Autodata customer agreement for further details.

Autodata is not responsible for technical errors, lost promotional codes, or third-party failures that may prevent access to the offer. To the extent permitted by law, Autodata disclaims liability for any indirect or consequential loss arising from participation in the promotion.